

The Review Automation Blueprint

A practical, CRM-ready system for turning completed jobs into consistent Google reviews—without relying on your team to remember.

THE PROBLEM THIS SOLVES

Happy customers rarely leave reviews without a timely ask.

Most businesses do not lose reviews because customers had a bad experience. They lose reviews because nobody asks consistently at the moment customers are happiest. This blueprint removes that inconsistency.

THE COMPLETE WORKFLOW

Goal: remove memory from the process.

Every happy customer enters the sequence automatically. Every customer who reviews exits automatically. Your team only steps in when a human touch will help.

COMPLETED JOB + TIMELY ASK + CONTROLLED FOLLOW-UP = CONSISTENT REVIEWS

Thank them while the win is fresh.

Trigger this SMS the moment a job is marked complete.

SMS #1
NOW

Personal review request

SMS

Hi First Name,

We wanted to thank you again from the bottom of our hearts for trusting us.

I'm so glad Team Member was able to help you with Problem Solved.

As a small business, reviews mean the world to us, and we'd be incredibly grateful if you took 30 seconds to share your experience.

Leave your review here:

Google Review Link

Thank you again—we truly appreciate your support!

Why this message feels human

It uses three specific details: the customer's first name, the team member they worked with, and the problem solved. That is enough personalization to make an automated message feel genuine.

Keep it specific

Replace all three personalization fields before launch.

Use one direct link

Send customers straight to the Google review form.

Do not delay

The emotional high point is immediately after completion.

Check consent

Follow your SMS permission and compliance requirements.

Catch the text that got buried.

Before sending, check whether the customer has already reviewed. If yes, end the workflow. If not, send this email.

EMAIL
+2 DAYS

Subject: A quick favor

EMAIL

Hi First Name,

I just wanted to follow up in case my text got buried.

If you have a minute, we'd be incredibly grateful if you shared your experience with us.

Your review helps other people feel confident choosing our business and helps support our team.

Leave your review here:

Google Review Link

Thank you again for your support.

Why switch channels?

The email does not feel like a repeated text. It gives the customer another chance to respond in the channel they may check when they have more time.

Required stop condition

☐ Check for a completed review first

☐ If reviewed, remove from workflow

☐ If not reviewed, send email

☐ Wait one additional day

Make one final respectful ask.

Check for a review again. If none exists, send this final SMS—then end automated follow-up.

FINAL SMS
+1 DAY

Last automated reminder

SMS

Hi First Name,

Just wanted to send one last reminder while your experience is still fresh.

If you haven't had a chance yet, we'd really appreciate your feedback.

Here's the review link one more time:

Google Review Link

Thank you so much!

IF THERE IS STILL NO REVIEW

RECOMMENDED

Trigger a human call

Notify someone on your team to personally call the customer. If they enjoyed the experience, politely ask whether they would be willing to leave a review.

ALTERNATIVE

Use a limited reminder track

Move the customer into a weekly reminder workflow. Stop when they review or after 30 days—whichever happens first.

Automation should hand off—not become harassment.

After two automated reminders, a human touch is usually more appropriate than increasing message frequency.

Build it once. Make every completed job count.

Use this final checklist to translate the blueprint into your CRM.

CRM build checklist

- | | |
|---|---|
| ☐ Create "Job Completed" trigger | ☐ Add First Name merge field |
| ☐ Add Team Member merge field | ☐ Add Problem Solved field |
| ☐ Insert direct Google review link | ☐ Send immediate SMS #1 |
| ☐ Wait two days | ☐ Check review status and stop |
| ☐ Send follow-up email | ☐ Wait one day |
| ☐ Check review status again | ☐ Send final SMS |
| ☐ Notify team for human follow-up | ☐ Hard-stop reminders at 30 days |

Personalize what matters

Three specific fields beat generic over-personalization.

Stop after success

Never ask again after a review is detected.

Respect channel consent

Follow applicable email and SMS requirements.

Monitor the handoff

Make sure internal notifications have a clear owner.

Want us to build this inside your CRM?

Book an Automation Audit. We will map the trigger, messages, review detection, and team handoff around your current systems.

links.mydas.ai/widget/booking/zCP75fYt9rf8v6no6BXM